That the enquiries indicated LEISHMAN had knowledge of the theft: that we were interested in the recovery of the gold particularly, to start with, we were interested in the parcel he had at the Vancouver airport. I told LEISHMAN I fully realized the position he was in, parole revoked, suspicion of theft etc. and that I realized he may not wish to say anything, and in fact he need not say anything. This brought the reply from LEISHMAN that he was going to tell me about the parcel: that he was on his way to Tokyo for wigs: that he changed his plan in Vancouver and intended returning to Wpg. and for a friend he bought an Eskimo soap stone carving for a friend and that this was in the parcel. I told LEISHMAN this was not an acceptable story in the light of the investigation and LEISHMAN replied 'forget it'. Following statements also made: He wished to return to Wpg to assess local situation before saying anything.

The gold in Winnipeg was recoverable.

The parcel at Vancouver held what we wanted, the gold. That there was no other gold in Vancouver.

The gold at Vancouver airport was recoverable but Police ...would never find it, that he would tell Police where it

...was after assessing Wpg. situation and he could direct ...Police (referring to Sgt.MULLOCK) to it by telephone.

Said he never stole the gold, he couldn't, he was too well know. Repeated frequently, "how about that, old Harry had a brick in h

Said his mind was a blank, he could not think. office

Said his reason for not being able to show us where the parcel ...was at Vancouver was because at time of interview he was 'up

...to here' (indicated by hand to calf of leg) and if he took us ...to it he would be 'up to here' (hand to hair line top of head

Said he'd get twenty years.

Was sorry for wife and family, publicity, crank calls, so forth.

Said all gold was in BACKLIN'S back yard and when told 10 bars

...were recovered he said we now had 90% of it and the other bars

...would still be in BACKLIN'S yard and the search was just not

...proper or it too would be found.

Never denied theft.

Returning on plane: Said truck was never stolen - just joy-ride because it never left airport property, that instead of having 1 hour to get away 'they estimated ten minutes'.
